By engaging with this theme, our young artists gained a deeper understanding of how education influences positive change in the world. The competition not only showcased their skills but also instilled a sense of purpose and awareness about global educational goals. As they delved into the theme of Quality Education, the students reflected on the ways education can transform lives and communities. Their posters vividly illustrated concepts such as equal access to education, the role of teachers, and the importance of lifelong learning. Creative Minds

"Creativity is intelligence having fun". – Albert Einstein

This July, Classes I and II W.E. classes embraced the theme 'Creative Minds,' encouraging students to explore their imagination through various hands-on crafts. The month was filled with exciting projects that allowed children to transform everyday objects into works of art.

Wiggling with creativity, one of the most popular activities was creating colourful caterpillars using socks. Students learned to stuff and segment old socks, adding googly eyes and pipe cleaner antennae to bring their creepy crawly friends to life. Next, our budding artists experimented with fork painting, using this unconventional tool to create the National Bird of India. Taking flight with imagination, students also transformed simple paper plates into beautiful butterflies. With paint, glitter, and an array of decorative materials, they designed vibrant wings and learned about symmetry in nature. This craft combined art with a touch of science, as we discussed butterfly life cycles and habitats. These projects demonstrated that creativity knows no bounds. By using everyday items in unexpected ways, our students learned to see the world through a more imaginative lens.
